Relax now and listen to the sound of my voice.
I have no further questions concerning this target.
However, I would like to provide you the opportunity to explore the target on your own, and comment as you see fit. Do this now.

afternoon's target. Remember and prepare yourself to draw those perceptions that you have had.

REMOTE VIEWING SESSION 857

(DRAWING NARRATIVE)

- #63: Okay. Drawing number 1 are things that I came up later on in the session.
- #66: What was the very first thing that you perceived.
- #63: The very first thing that I perceived is, I guess on page number 2...all three of the A, B, and C. I kept getting something tall, slender. I felt it was curved and square at the same time. So, I've drawn all three of those. I got a feeling of a fence post.
- #66: I think that the very first thing that you said was openness.
- #63: Well, I felt like the target was right here in front of me and everything else around there was very open and flat. But, the target wasn't openness itself. The area around it was very open, and the target was standing right in front of me. Later on the white crest in the white semi-circle that I described...something like this, and I feel that that might be a beach or something, and maybe water out here. And I saw Pine trees off in the distance coming up close ...like a Pine forest in that area. ✓
- #66: I see distance here in this curve....it may be a beach or it may be like railroad tracks..... that extend off in the distance. It may be a paved road or something like that. But, definitely a wide open perspective type thing.
- #63: Right. And, I feel that there is stuff over on this side like trees or something. For some reason or other I didn't get anything over here. That's why I feel maybe it's water or something over here, and this is a beach with.....
- #66: Now, when I asked you what was the soil like, where did you take your soil sample?
- #63: Up in this area here. Up closer to the target. And, I had to fight off an immediate impression.... like I say, I saw something that reminded me of a light tower...looked like a light tower or..... what do they call a tower.....light house.

- #63: .....and everything seemed to form around that, and I had an impression ...desire to say sandy when you said soil, that I tried to fight that off and just think about it, and that's when I came up with a light colored, and loose,... still might be overlayed from the.....
- #66: Okay. So, if I understand what you said now, listen and see if I had.....your first perceptions were of this that you've drawn on page 2 which looks to be like a tower type thing. Sometime you feel there's some squareness to it and sometimes there's some roundness. You don't recognize it, but it looks most like you would imagine a light tower, light house might look. From that you seem to feel as though you generated another scene that may be a beach scene, but without generating a beach scene there are some specific components. There's openness there. There is a sandy or white grittish soil there. There is some surrounding foilage there. There generally seems to be an openness other than this one thing.
- #66: Right, right. When you said to back 500 feet from the target, that's when I got this. Now, again, this may be seeing this from a distance, but I had a feeling that the target was still right here and I was seeing these taller things off in the distance.
- #66: Okay. So, there might be mountains in the distance. An openness with mountains in the distance.
- #63: Right. And something was a little different from about this session than a lot of my sessions, and that was, I was totally blank most of the time with a few vague images coming in. Whereas, I'm usually overlayed with tons of stuff, and I have a hard time deciphering which one to identify and which one not. This, I really didn't see much of anything, and the things I did see were very..... not very distinct.
- #66: Okay. How does that make you feel emotionally?
- #63: Well, the lack of a lot of overlay makes me feel good. So, I feel good about that. And, if some of this stuff is correct I'll feel even better.
- #66: Is there anything else you would like to say?
- #63: No. That's all.
- #66: Okay. Fine.
